Ch. 1 It's Here (Marxist Anti-American Revolution)

The counter revolution to the American revolution is here, it is Marxism. Marxists today hide under new terms like Democratic socialists, liberals, antifa, or BLM. They claim to promote justice and equity.

You can't say that labor equals capital. Having a long work day doesn't ensure something's going to get done. Labor alone does not determine the value of a product or service.

Note: Nor do labor hours equate the amount of risk and skill it takes to operate a business. End note.

Profit does not create exploitation of workers, it leads to increased worker pay, benefits, security, and job opportunities.

Note: Just ask Henry Ford, successful and known for giving good pay. End note.

Ingenuity and capitalism are what made America advance, not plundering resources from others.

Note: We don't want to redistribute wealth or 'soak the rich,' we want to have freedom and grow the rich so we all can grow. Create, don't take. End note.

Illegal immigration is pushed by the Democratic party to change the demographics of the country and add to the Democratic party voting base. Voting has been rigged to favor the Democratic party for decades.

Note: Democrats are famous for promising lots of free stuff. In democracy, whoever promises the most free stuff eventually wins. We need the rule of law to protect us from theft by government. The general welfare must be general, not for specific special interest or victim groups. End note.

The Biden administration is making more regulations on everything.

The Democratic party supported slavery and segregation.

Note: D'Souza in his book Death of a Nation suggests that the modern Democrat welfare state is akin to modern slavery, getting people to love their dependency on the state as their new master. End note.

Marxism is about oppressors and people who are oppressed, aka victims. Marxism stresses classism over individualism, that a person is nothing unless they identify with the victimized group. Marxists want to topple existing social order and start everything over as an egalitarian society. The allegedly oppressed become the real oppressors, attacking people who do not identify with their cause. Their appetite for control and revolution only grows. Teachers unions and Ivy League colleges are particularly poisoned by Marxism.

The new elite are ignorant and they just want change. They don't see any inheritance worth preserving. Marxists want to streamline power and get rid of checks and balances on power. They don't like free speech because it gets in their way; they want to label things as hate speech and control what is said.

There's a very real possibility that there will be a Marxist revolution to overthrow America. There are ominous signs of tyranny which many are not concerned about, they are too busy with their personal lives to know what's really going on.

The threat for us is from within our society rather than an outside foe as was the case in the past. Ronald Reagan said freedom is never more than one generation away from extinction - it must be fought for every generation.

Ch. 2 Breeding Mobs

Mass movements consume the individual identity making people indistinguishable from the masses. They decide a generic identity to assign each person based on their age race income etc. to draw class distinctions. This way they can speak to the well-being of people as a whole while (covertly) dividing them against themselves. They want to collapse the existing society and rule over the new one.

The dissatisfied members of society who are not willing to be responsible for their own choices are drawn to these mass movements. They want to blame their life circumstances on the system and others. They get a sense of meaning in speaking for this cause and trying to get everyone equal regardless of efforts. They emphasize absolute obedience (to government programs and politically correct rules) without individuality, making us robots to build their society.

Antifa and Black Lives Matter (BLM) are anarchist Marxist movements with people wearing the same black uniform and mask without individual identity or names. They shame and ban people who have different views than themselves, they cannot handle differences in opinion. It's called cancel culture and is intolerant of debate. They always resort to violence. They don't run for public office, they stay behind the scenes and influence people who are running for office so they have minimal accountability. They couldn't win office because their ideas don't work.

When people lose their identity and are made to join in towards a greater good egalitarian society, experience has shown that this is the building block of a totalitarian society. Such a society seeks to control speech mobility and thought. Russo and Hegel and Marx proposed these ideas.

Marx says the worker is a slave to the business owner and the only way out is to overthrow the whole system. The supposed workers paradise spoken of by Russo Hegel and Marx is an impossible ideology and none of them are able to define how it really comes to pass. In practice it just turns into a police state. China, Venezuela, North Korea and Cuba are examples.

Eric Hoffer's book The True Believer: on the Nature of Mass Movements says these mass movements are typically angry, gloomy and self-deprecating, denouncing any sort of individual development. They denounce anyone who has success or is happy. Their revolutioning is never over, because they never achieve what they seek.

There's endless statistical evidence that the police force is not systemically racist, but those converted to this racist ideology insist that it is anyway.

Fanatics are blind and without reason. Facts against their cause mean nothing to them. People unsatisfied with their lives tend to nurse grievances, and these grievances are nurtured in mass movements. Mass movements are pushed in colleges as 'the righteous way' to resist, but they always end up as totalitarian governments.

Note: They excuse their behavior, blame others, and excuse their unjust rebellion. It's all based on lies, emotional exploitation, and the college environment where these ideas can thrive without being hampered by reality or free speech. End note.

People are being programmed into being a cog in the movement. Collective identity and collective beliefs are given. Class consciousness has been a key motivator of revolutions. Mass movements are to activate people who would not otherwise be politically active and to create new political issues which were not before being considered. This is done by force rather than the political process.

Marxism is a new faith promising a new society. It is known for mass death and impoverishment.

Ch. 3 Hate America, Inc.

Progressives talk as though they were helping individuals but really they're just pushing individuals into the collective.

A tenured and unionized legion of teachers controls the narrative. Their purpose is to clear the way of traditional teaching to promote progressive Marxist ideologies. They refuse to teach real history by claiming that no one knows real history because all we have are books of people's opinions.

Note: The rejection of reliable history is clearly a radical idea rejected by serious historians, a brazen nihilistic irrational approach to history.

Furthermore, people pulling the strings behind the scenes are requiring professors to teach these radical ideas, it's in the professors contract to teach these things. See Bowers Hiding in Plain Sight for more details. End note.

Only about 1/3 of the population graduate from a four year college so the Marxists try to get their indoctrination in before that at secondary and primary school (targeting children). The Democratic party pushes for free college and canceling college debt because they want as many people there to be indoctrinated as possible. This also explains why there's no free speech on college campuses. They only accept Marxist views and fight against Americanism.

Individual liberty and capitalism go hand in hand, so the Marxists want to get rid of capitalism to have their collectivist society.

The Democratic party used Covid to vastly increase the welfare state and buy people over to their side with this free stuff.

John Dewey claimed he was getting students to learn how to think, but he was really doing the opposite, indoctrinating them into the progressive view. Dewey did not want students learning laws of science, nature, morality and society which had been discovered - he wanted them to start everything over.

People of faith and reason do not reject science, but they do not worship science either; they know they are eternal established truths (that don't need to be rediscovered all the time). Dewey advocated that students open their mind, but what were they opening it to? Indoctrination. Dewey wanted schools to be more focused on social issues. Dewey was a fan of the Soviet Union propaganda style education.

The New York times helped the Soviet Union cover up Stalin's crimes of genocide against Ukrainians.

Students in America are now taught disdain for their own country. They're encouraged to renounce its founding and founders. Parents are often appalled at what their children learn in mandatory government schools and post-secondary colleges which is so different from the parents' values and understanding.

The fruits of Marxism are destroying America. In our own day we have seen great cities obliterated. We are seeing tribulations such as was not known from the beginning of the world.

We reject the wisdom of the ages in favor of the supposed scientists, their supposedly accurate instruments, and supposed data to seek to manage and control society. Darwinian evolution gave credence to social theorists who said that humans always act out of economic motivation. History was no longer the great man whose soul was at stake, it was now the wealth seeking consuming animal. The complexity of humanity was reduced to the simplistic ineffective theory of economics where the individual is a one-dimensional creature focused solely on material consumption. Then psychological behaviorism denied the existence of the will and the instinct and said everything is just training.

Note: True, we know that history was much more than economic. It was spiritual, it was heroic, it was noble, it was complex and romantic. And Darwinism is one of the great apocalyptic evils, being a fabrication with the utmost appalling impacts on society, spreading into every school of thought and turning them into dust. End note.

Religion was let go and replaced with education. Marxists separate all morals from knowledge and this opens the floodgates to indoctrination. Academia is the main place for Marxist indoctrination.

Diversity is now the signature of Marxism. They want to overturn society. They claim that capitalism is a machine the government is using to control everyone.

Marxism disguises itself as a champion of the poor seeking to bring in a millennium of peace, but in practice it is always a police state. There's a theological aspect of Marxism which promotes a rebirth of character which would supposedly come as they usher in their kingdom. In 2020 there were many riots by antifa & BLM, these Marxist organizations tried to herald in their new age, their apocalypse leading to the new beginning. These people live in a fantasy world and they want other people to live in it as well; when we resist, they strike us down or force us to strike them down.

People escape communists' supposed paradises to come to capitalist America, not the other way around. You're better off as an employee in America than in slave labor in communist countries.

Economic equality is not so simple as people make it out to seem - how would it sustain itself, how would it change the nature of the market, what does it mean to be equal, what does it look like. Oftentimes employers are also workers, you can't separate things so clearly, and therefore you can't blame employers so dogmatically.

Note: We can't waive a magic wand and make equal outcomes for everyone. When equal opportunity was established people thought equal outcomes would come soon thereafter. It didn't come, and rather than embrace the fact that this is due to human nature and individual differences, they continued to push for more state control to force all outcomes to be the same. The equal outcomes the state offers are that everyone will be equally broke. It is the Devil's plan to force everyone to 'succeed.' That's not how success or human nature works - if you want something, you work for it. You can't give something to someone who isn't willing to do what it takes to get there. It's the same with salvation of the soul, and many might be surprised to see how closely related salvation of the soul is to salvation in economics and success in a free society. End note.

Unions are outdated in most industries - typically employers understand that exploiting your employees does not lead to a sustainable profitable business. This is why most people don't belong to unions. Unions often develop into representing the state more than members of the union.

To Marxists society determines conscience, rather than conscience determining the society.

Marxists claim that in capitalist America, all of your circumstances determine all of your opportunities and future; but we are not in a caste system of predetermined rules. Caste societies are most common in communist societies. Every society will have social snobs, but this is far different than a communist caste rigid society.

Note: Scriptures on “slaves rising against their masters” surely refer to the overthrow of communist countries, not just the US civil war as many suppose. End note.

Marx said we need to rescue education from the ruling class, but teachers are from all economic classes. But they are feeding leftist propaganda at the schools (teachers are trained in it, it's in the curriculum, it's in their contract to teach it, etc.).

Critical pedagogy puts race and gender into economic Marxism. It's neo-Marxism in education. It's to enlist people into social protest. Critical educators continue/distort the civil rights movement to take over schools. They are creating a generation of activists who will participate in protests and make their identity as part of the revolutionary movement. The Marxist faculty have an agenda to create a generation and army of Marxist's who will leave the schools and enter the workplace to continue pushing Marxism in the workplace.

Note: Even if they don't know much else, schools today teach them resentment, entitlement, hatred of structure and success, adoration of government, all the ingredients for the recipe of Marxist revolutionaries. End note.

See book “The Breakdown of Higher Education.”

8% of professors from almost 1,000 universities were conservative, 80% were leftist, half of them were hard left. One in five professors in the social sciences self-identified as a Marxist. In sociology it's more than one in 4.

The general public do not like the word Marxist, so many have those philosophies without identifying with that title, they call themselves socialist, progressive, or activists. The more people that are pushed through University the higher chance the Marxists have for their revolution.

Ch. 4 Racism Genderism and Marxism

Tolerance today is about tolerating things that used to not be accepted and not tolerating things which are currently accepted, it's revolutionary.

Tolerance today is about suppressing alternatives and inflating the struggle for existence.

They say it is fiction that America is the land of freedom and opportunity, they say people who don't believe that it is fiction are mindless stupid zombies who cannot think for themselves but are slaves slowing down economic and political liberation. This is all nonsense.

They say that a society which does not let you overthrow it is not tolerant. If it does not sow the seeds of the demise of its own society by Marxist revolutionaries, it's apparently not tolerant.

Tolerance today is not balanced on the left and the right, it tolerates what the left is pushing, and hunts dissenters.

Note: Essentially, they use the word tolerance when it has nothing to do with tolerance, only to do with accepting their radical agenda. It's another one of those cute words weaponized into tricking Christians and well-meaning people into going along with abominable and tyrannical ideas. End note.

Real revolutionaries are willing to be personally punished for their actions. Their actions do not insight further violence but seek to stop a violence already taking place. As Levin noted elsewhere, the antifa rioters in their black masks are not willing to take accountability, hiding their identity.

Note: They are not willing to sign their name to their actions, not willing to risk their lives and their sacred honor like the Founding Fathers were. I wonder about the superhero frenzy in America, the heroes are always shown as hiding their true identity by masks. Forget about running for office, voting, using the political process, let's just solve everything by violence and abandon all law and order. Let's self-appoint ourselves to do everything that really needs to get done. Forget about democracy, we know what's best! End note.

Note: Recently there has been controversy around ICE immigration enforcement officers to not wear masks to hide their identity. You can see how these officers could want to hide from personal attacks as immigration enforcement is very unpopular in some circles. However, it is generally a best practice for officers to show their identity. This holds the officer accountable, and can protect the officer from spurious accusations. We must defend officers when they are in the right, and punish them when they are in the wrong. Joel Skousen agrees that masks for officers is a bad idea. End note.

Critical race theory is racist and Marxist. It's all about the oppressors and the oppressed. It posits a racial hierarchy and says that race is the primary way to identify people. It says whites are on top and blacks are on bottom, and claims systemic racism. It's about whites admitting that they are bad and as a group and at fault for society's problems. Critical Race Theory (CRT) claims that whites are responsible for all minority grievances.

Critical Race Theory promotes 'intersectionality,' involves oppression from multiple different sources at present working together against you. It implies that the present cannot be divorced from the past, and that today's institutions must be corrupt because yesterday's institutions were. Intersectionality is where they get the idea that America is helplessly racist and must be condemned and overthrown. They ignore all that has been done for minorities including a civil war, lots of welfare, and laws changed to further protect everyone.

Humans are complex, you can't just bunch them into these categories.

Critical race theory is not about taking little steps towards civil rights, it's about questioning and uprooting the foundations of society as a whole. Any improvements for everyone in society are projected as improvements only for whites. Advocates of critical race theory are not satisfied with promoting general equality for everyone, they insist that the whites admit systemic racism.

Critical Race Theory borrows from Marx about people being solely motivated by economics, but furthers that to include race. It says white elites and even the white working class are part of the bourgeoisie.

Note: The expansion of Marxism to also focus on race and gender may seem nuanced, but the end result is similar, a class war. End note.

Critical Race Theory ignores people's differences and focuses only on their color. Marxism is all about creating subgroups and pitting them against each other. It's not teaching kids arithmetic reading and writing, it's teaching kids what to think, indoctrinating them and marshaling them to be an army of activist revolutionaries.

Note: Then revolution happens, and the elite emerge as the new kings. Kingmen. They would rather be rulers of chaos and weaklings than citizens of order and strength. Devilish to be sure. End note.

Delgado who wrote the landmark book “critical race theory” (promoting it) and points out that it is not like other curriculums in that it has an activist element to it, getting the kids to do stuff to make political changes. Marxists call not for the political process to be used but for subversive action and protest. Not to vote and run for office, but to go disrupt society.

Note: Political activism isn't education, it's brainwashing. Education is to teach about leading ideas, not about putting kids into politics. End note.

Anyone who criticizes Critical Race Theory and its advocates are called white privilege white ignorant etc. Ironically, the CRT advocates are the only people who are systemically racist.

Walker, who was famous in the Civil Rights movement and basically the right hand man of Martin Luther King Jr., denounces Critical Race Theory. He does not like that it separates people by their color (even children) Walker says that we must unite not divide. Walker says each person needs to be not a symbol of a group but an individual in the common context of humanity. His views are rooted in real civil rights.

Note: It is appalling how advocates of radical racial agendas renounce MLK Jr.'s statement calling for us to make judgements based on 'content of their character not color of their skin.' The message today of the radicals is that equality is not enough. They say racism against whites is appropriate. Anti-white racism is a growing sentiment militantly promoted at colleges. End note.

Derek Bell promoted Critical Race Theory and (renown black economist) Thomas Sowell refuted him.

People in the Black Lives Matter group (BLM) blame everything on white supremacy, including the industrial revolution. They say racism is a structure, not an event. They say there's no point in pursuing your rights because there's really no rights at all because even when you have your rights it doesn't give you a Marxist egalitarian society; this is why they want revolution, not rights. They say rights are used to uphold the white power and deny minorities!

If you disagree with Critical Race Theory advocates politically or philosophically they say it's hate speech. These advocates claim that free speech is poisoned and should not be allowed. This of course leads to oppression, censorship, and today's cancel-culture of firing people who don't agree with the narrative.

They claim that school tests are racist because some people can afford more tutoring and others can't.

Note: This obviously doesn't have anything to do with race, and is a fact of life. Tests show what you know. Not all factors of what someone knows are out of their control, in fact most factors are within their control. Agency of people always impacts lives. If people use their agency to be charitable, all are better off. If they don't, all are worse off. This is the test of life, and the accountability to God in the hereafter. The greatest good in life is not how much we are educated or even how comfortable and well to do we become. The test is to be a good person - the character of goodness is what the test of life is about. Leveling the playing field economically by pulling down the successful would be the same as Satan's plan to 'save all' by force. End note.

Sensoy and D'Angelo's book Is Everyone Really Equal promotes critical theories. The book introduction talks about how many teachers resist these ideas. It's about critical theory critical thinking prejudice discrimination oppression power ableism sexism racial oppression white supremacy intersectionality classism etc. It's about discovering supposed deep unseen injustice.

Note: I had to read this book for a class for an educator license class and it's the most bizarre nonsense you ever heard. Every single proposed solution was leftist, calling for more and more government. My teacher promoted the book as though it were the bible of education, and whenever I or someone else questioned it, we were not given any attention, or worse, were just rebutted by more circular reasoning nonsense, ignoring the facts we presented. One Hispanic man in the class who 'pulled himself up by his bootstraps' was particularly concerned about the book, and he emphasized that people should work hard and appreciate the greatness of America. The teacher never liked what he had to say, and always found a way to twist his testimony with more nonsense. You couldn't get anywhere with the professor, she just had more of the same oppression talking points. Most of the students in the class were silent on the issues, or so ignorant that they bought the critical theories whole cloth, questioning nothing she said. It was painful to say the least. They would say things like 'I had no idea!' Why did they have no idea? Because the theories promoted in the text were so radical and fictional, and the reported problems had so little impact on reality, that no one would've known without this pedaling of fictitious brainwashing. End note.

The 1619 project by the New York times is a series of essays on a new version of history emphasizing the supposed lasting impact of slavery on all US institutions. It's about making 1619, when slaves were brought over, the time of the founding of America (not 1776) (to emphasize the role of slavery). The 1916 Creator Hannah Jones sees racism everywhere she looks. She points to minimum wage laws, lack of paternity leave, lack of universal health care, low rates of union membership, poorly performing school systems in minority neighborhoods, and (hilariously) highway systems.

Wood responded to the 1619 project with a book called "1620". It exposes how 1619 is all about people who hate America on the hard left. 1619 puts into mainstream the fringe conspiracy that the American revolution was a pro-slavery event. Its phony research dressed up as history. The 1619 project contains no footnotes, bibliographies, citations, etc.

1619 makes slavery and white supremacy the dominant themes and they're trying to make this into school curriculum. It's a false statement to say that the American revolution was to enable slavery to continue. It falsely claims that black Americans have fought for their freedom alone.

1619 ignores the pro-freedom views of Lincoln who pointed to the Declaration of Independence to promote freedom for all. 1619 ignores Frederick Douglass who spoke of America's founding documents as great freedom documents. In the 18th century anti-slavery was a very new idea and there was much more anti-slavery in the colonies than there was in Britain. To claim that the American revolution was pro-slavery completely distorts the reason of the revolution and the American vision from its inception.

Note: The Declaration and Constitution set America on the inevitable path of the elimination of slavery. End note.

The New York Times covered up the Holocaust of the Jews, covered up the mass starvation of millions of Ukrainians in 1932, and defended Castro in the 50s.

With the recent death of George Floyd, mainstream publications have been bashing on white people and claiming we have a racial hierarchical caste system in America similar to Nazi Germany. It normalizes and popularizes “collective white guilt.” The Times and the Post beginning in 2013 dramatically increased uses of the words white and privilege etc. White supremacy is now an all-encompassing label, no longer about people who really are racist. White supremacy is now seen (in radical leftist circles) as the prevailing ethos of American civilization. It is clear to see that journalism has become very radical.

In 2017 the use of the words white supremacy went up in newspapers about 18% as compared to 2014. Trump tried to stop the spread of this and said it was misrepresenting the foundations of our country and its role in the world. Douglas who opposed Lincoln claimed that America was made by whites for whites, but we rejected that and fought the Civil War over it. Trump issued an executive order explaining that Critical Race Theory and its racist agenda were consuming the government. The executive order banned treating one race or sex as different or as inherently bad, etc. It said that no one, regardless of race or sex, should feel accountable for what people did in the past or should be made to feel guilt for what people did in the past. The first day Joe Biden took office after Trump he signed a different executive order to reverse Trump's executive order. Biden wants equal outcomes, not equal access and treatment; he replaced the word equality with equity which [equity] is a popular word meaning equal outcomes in the Critical Race Theory movement. The pursuit of equity makes the pursuit of equality impossible. It is radical egalitarianism.

Note: The 2nd latter-day saint article of faith here is helpful: “We believe that man will be punished for his own sins, and not for Adams transgression.” In other words, no one is to blame for what their ancestors did, only for what they themselves do. Surely enthroning this principle into law was a Captain-Moroni-like move. Bravo! And the work Trump has done in his second term on these matters is very encouraging! In his second inaugural address he made important points like only recognizing two genders etc. It was a moment where the spirit of God shined! Politics aside, truth is truth, and he was pumping lots of truth! End note.

There's a major White House organization pushing radical gender supposed justice. A squad of people gathering data about people's behavior and how well their behavior aligns with these Marxist agendas. People have an easier time who have higher social credit scores like in China; they have an easier time getting bank loans, discounts, etc. Sometimes those with the lower scores aren't allowed to buy airplane tickets, etc. Students may be kept out of universities for their parents' bad social credit scores.

Color blindness and judging people based on their merits and skills are not appreciated by radical Critical Race Theory advocates. A famous museum recently said that the idea that hard work leads to success is just whiteness.

Black Lives Matters founders are openly Marxist.

Marx attacked the nuclear family and religion because those got in the way of his theoretical paradise.

Mexicans leave their own country to come to America to escape crime, exploitation, & poverty. Yet the Marxists try to make America look like the bad place.

Critical Race Theory rejects the terms ‘illegal’ and ‘alien.’

Yesterday's shocking radical theory of separating sex from gender is today's accepted norm, and there are more radical changes to come. They say there's no more need to follow certain scripts.

Note: More like no need to follow scriptures! End note.

Civil rights laws already protect people on the basis of sex, but the Biden administration is taking it much further pushing transgender ideologies into every aspect of social life from sports to healthcare to school and beyond.

Equality in female sports is destroyed when you seek for 'equity,' allowing males who identify female to participate. This is one example of many where we see 'equity' destroys equality. Remember, equity means equal outcomes, whereas equality means equal opportunity.

Transgender ideology politics are corrupting our laws and intruding on the rights of children. Kids are being pushed to imitate the opposite sex and to get puberty blockers etc. The non-scientific belief that gender is fluid and subjective is being pushed into the curriculum of schools in the name of tolerance. It is claimed that marriage and family are rooted in bigotry. Several states are now mandating teaching about sexual orientation, and others are banning it. It's less about tolerance and more about indoctrination and submission.

Note: It is painfully clear that Critical Race Theory is of the devil. When you reject family, you reject Christ and everything he stood for. Anything which is anti-family is anti-Christ. End note.

Note: Vote with your feet – flee the liberal states who are making major attacks on humanity, and go to states where they are still sane. End note.

Critical theory is now taught more widely than any of the great original thinkers who built society.

Critical theory does away with the age of Enlightenment and the vast freedoms that came with it. Instead it focuses on oppressed groups obsessed with overthrowing American society, American culture, and supposedly oppressive institutions.

Ch. 5 Climate Change Fanaticism

When people are free, capitalism happens. Socialist ideals are impossible to achieve both logically and in practice.

Note: All capitalism is free trade. It's the most natural thing ever. Cap means head – it refers back to earning your keep by the sweat of your brow. It's about applying yourself to make your living. That this simple concept is so villified in our day is truly astounding. Those who fight capitalism are fighting against freedom. Socialism is theft. If people want to give portions of their money to others, so be it, but make no government forcing such things through taxation. It is impossible to gain the consent of every person in these matters. This cannot be a decision of majority vote. If one person doesn't want tax dollars to be used this way, it cannot be done. The laws of God thunder from Mount Sinai: THOU SHALT NOT STEAL. End note.

Thomas Sowell points out that there is an inextricable link between economic freedom and political freedom. He condemns the supposed compromise of 'democratic socialism' as a delusion. A socialistic society cannot also be democratic because it cannot guarantee individual freedom.

Industrialized civilization has produced more food clothing and the means to transport it to the needy than ever before. No one in the industrialized countries need be homeless or hungry. Industrialization has also produced access to clean temperature controlled water, sewage systems, vehicles, vaccines, antibiotics etc., putting an end to many diseases resulting in billions of more people surviving these days, and not only surviving but living a lifestyle greater than kings of old. The wonders of today's technological advancements are the science fiction of yesterday.

Economic regression and radical egalitarianism are all part of the Green New Deal and its Marxist roots. GND (Green New Deal) also calls for autocratic rule. They want radical "degrowth" change. They blame America and capitalism for all problems. The GND is based on theories which would result in disastrous societal outcomes. They want to eliminate carbon fuel and redistribute wealth as they see fit. The leaders of course would maintain the lavish lifestyles which capitalism brought them, but everyone else would have to regress to a state of nature and non-production. It's about getting rid of capitalism.

Note: Anyone who can't see the Devil's hand in this is truly blind. End note.

They're okay with having a season of despotism to herald in their paradise. Just like Marx taught, the Green New Deal advocates want to get rid of schools, families, history, our economy, our nation, everything. They claim they can issue their degrowth policies and simultaneously improve human lifestyle quality. They want to cut the work hour week in half and at the same time guarantee a basic income for everyone.

Note: The law of God is clear: six days shalt thou work. End note.

Marxism dressed up as a green movement is still Marxism and it would not result in sharing and conviviality as they claim, but in poverty need indolence and the overall decline of civil society and the quality of life.

In degrowth literature the economy is not spontaneous and free, it is a political contraption. It is not based on supply and demand but on central control. It is communistic control of production and control of distribution. (Sound familiar? It's Marxism).

Ayn Rand wrote a book, The Anti-Industrial Revolution. It's about destroying capitalism and establishing a global dictatorship. The ecological crusade is a means to an end, by their own admission. The collectivist now is condemning abundance in general. They denounce people for being comfortable and secure. Instead of exploiting you to feel guilty about exploiting people, now they're exploiting you to feel guilty about exploiting land air and water. It is an overall hatred for man and life itself. Reason is the precondition of man's survival, and this movement is against reason. The industrial revolution made it possible for America the magnificent to be created, and America is the very thing they are trying to take down. Rand teaches that freedom and capitalism are inseparably linked. Socialist Marxism on the other hand is about people seeking unearned benefits. The whole of communism is one big impossible fiction.

Note: See also Rand's book "Capitalism," and her freedom novels Atlas Shrugged and The Fountainhead. The novels have a few inappropriate themes, and Rand has an anti-religion bone to pick, but for the most part her writings promote freedom in refreshingly clear terms. End note.

The ecologists only talk about the needs of nature, they never talk about the needs of man. Man is treated as though he were an unnatural phenomenon. Man cannot survive in the level of nature that ecologists envision.

Note: This is just more logical steps in the evolution agenda to turn humans 'back into' animals rooted in a claim that we originated as animals and that it would be best for everyone and everything if we went back. This agenda is clearly brim with falsehoods, is anti-human, and ultimately Satanic. We can't go back into animals because we never were animals. We are created in the image of God, God being the literal father of the first man Adam, as well as the father of our spirits. End note.

The critical environmental justice movement is intertwined with other critical theories on gender race etc. It teaches pacifism and anti-America ideologies. The environmentalists are no longer asking for 'clean water clean air and saving polar bears,' they're all on the Marxist bandwagon of anti-America in a quest to uproot the entire society and throw it all away. Somehow every possible evil is blamed on America, the one society in the history of the world that has lifted the most people out of poverty, fed the most poor people, etc. They will force, brainwash, and wage all manner of war to bring about this egalitarian utopia fantasy.

Note: Of course, this supposed paradise is fictional from start to finish; Satan can never deliver on his promises. God can and does give paradise to the obedient, and Satan can only claim that he is going to give this gift as he carefully leads souls down to hell to bind them fast in eternal torment. It is eternally ironic how people work so hard to please the Devil to get what the Devil offers, when in reality the Devil can't deliver, and if they would have just trusted God, God would have delivered. We don't need to reinvent the wheel on how to have lasting happiness. God has laid it out for us, and nothing else will do. End note.

The critical environmental justice movement (CEJ) is anti-government in general and claims that the existence of any state always tends toward patriarchal racist oppressive situations. This is a far cry from the Declaration of Independence which makes it clear that governments are created for the purpose of ensuring rights and happiness. Apparently, they want the law of the jungle and the hellish life that comes with it.

In societies without capitalism and where the dominant race is not white, the people do anything they can to escape those places and come to America. Advocates of Critical Theory cannot explain this!

Note: This isn't to say white places are inherently better, it's to shut down the arguments that white places are inherently bad. Ultimately, America is the greatest place on Earth, and is so because of it's foundational principles of liberty and Christianity. Any country can embrace American values if it chooses to. Dennis Prager in his book Still the Best Hope expounds on how American values can be exported and adopted throughout the world. End note.

Socialist leaders Chavez and Maduro devastated Venezuela. The people are starving, there is a complete breakdown in healthcare and other public services, and they're trying to bring these broken ideas to America. So much for the magical future Chavez spoke of.

Thomas Sowell in his book "The quest for Cosmic Visions" rebuked these people who seek Utopia. Lenin was preoccupied with visions and would not work. Much of the 20th century tyranny has been a result of these visions.

Note: Real visionaries work hard, and promote God's law. Not their own vision, God's vision. End note.

Earth is one big ball of chemical resources. Even though we're using a lot more resources than we used to, we're still using virtually 0% of Earth's resources. Nature, for all intents and purposes, provides an infinite supply of materials and energy. We can even go beyond this Earth. Human intelligence can master these things.

Note: And Earth is here FOR us. It was all created for the use of man. End note.

Environmental policies should be based on sound science and realistic economics. Warming is slower than predicted and is influenced more by nature than man. Warming has not resulted in natural disasters. CO2 is plant food, the basis of all life on Earth.

Many scientists reject the climate movement. Human induced global warming is not scientific, and huge bodies of evidence are ignored in claims to the contrary. Procedures are treated as evidence. Funds are not available to investigate theories that are not in accord with government ideology. Cheap energy has given us the modern world but the education system has been captured by activists that are simply wrong on this issue.

Note: Government favored theories get vast amounts of funding, and are pushed on millions of students on a daily basis at the government schools. It's the same with evolution theory – not all scientists agree with the theory, but you wouldn't know that since government has a virtual monopoly on what science theories they want you to hear. The solution is a free market school system where ideas can compete without the government juggernaut making everything unfair. End note.

No credible scientists can tell you whether it's going to be warmer or cooler in 2030. We don't need penal measures against CO2 emissions, we need preparedness for events of nature.

The climate movement is ideologically driven and anyone who disagrees is shut down and hated.

A laughable communist Green New Deal platform written by Alexandra O. Cortez is quoted in the text. They want free food, housing and money for everyone everywhere, and to repay everyone who's ever had anything wrong happen to them etc. It wishes to remake all buildings to make them more efficient, and to remake a power system grid, and many such things which are many trillions of dollars. She wants people to be taxed 70%. The Green New Deal would cost around $93 trillion over 10 years. Limited government, private property rights, and capitalism would all have to be abandoned. An even more massive bureaucracy with even more regulatory control, police power, and centralized decision making would be required. Basic liberties and mobility would disappear.

Biden quickly got us back into the Paris climate agreement which should be called a treaty because of how much it's going to affect us, but it's not called a treaty because that would require more support from Congress etc. to get into it. Biden like Obama before him simply issued an edict rather than trying to get 2/3 of the senators on board.

China also is in the Paris agreement but they have no intention of keeping it. When asked about China, Biden simply said they are doing what they must to keep their people together and there are different cultural expectations in different countries. He didn't seem to care that millions were being tortured there. Trump did call out China on these crimes against humanity.

Biden quickly shut down the Keystone XL pipeline. He justified this by parroting extremist climate propagandists.

Note: You can thank Biden every time you buy expensive gas for your car. End note.

Biden has made new departments and agencies in the White House about environment. He has made multiple executive order edicts to begin the enforcement of the radical Green New Deal. The epic money Biden is spending and planning to spend is only getting a reaction from the revolutionaries that it is not enough.

California has been an incubator for far-left environmental experiments. In 2020 the climate policies there resulted in a widespread blackout to millions cutting off their electrical power in a heatwave. The inconsistent weather meant that the alternative energy resources needed to long-term store and transport the generated energy, very expensive and unrealistic.

The February 21 Texas energy crisis was similar to the California crisis. It was also due to their alternative energy mandates. Wind turbines and solar panels are of little value during extreme weather. Natural gas helps but it's not enough.

Ch. 6 Censorship Propaganda and Subversion

See also his book Unfreedom of the Press.

Marx was a journalist. He took current events and focused on the politics and economics of them. He wasn't about actual news reporting, he was about shaping the news around his opinions and ideology, and that's how much of journalism works today. The purpose was to propagandize, not inform. He hoped that every little riot would lead to revolution. When you see Marx as a journalist with the vast amount he wrote you can better understand his use of rhetoric. He was not a reporter, he was a social activist.

The knowledge of journalists is overrated. Newspapers deliberately antagonize and distort issues to make antagonism where there was none to get a better story so their newspaper will sell better or lead to its social agendas. They inflame and divide the entire nation along ideological lines. Propaganda and pseudo-events work to get rid of reality, to get rid of real history, to uproot society, and clear the way for the Marxist utopia. Edward Bernays in his book Propaganda says it's about making and focusing on events that will bring about your purpose. Propaganda is the invisible arm of the executive government. Bernays was called a professional poisoner.

See the book The Origins of Totalitarianism.

Utopianism is a form of totalitarianism. See Levin's book Ameritopia.

People advocating the Marxist Utopia blame their surroundings for their problems. They find meaning only in their complaining.

Totalitarian societies have always told lots of lies to the public. Propaganda lies are taught as fact and seek to oversimplify reality. For example, pseudo-events of the 'Trump-Russia collusion to win the election' were obsessed over and Pulitzer prizes were given for utterly false news reports. They say they have the freedom to creatively make pseudo-events. When they speak of informing the people they're speaking of a marketplace of competing fake stories and people choosing which fake stories they want to hear. We live in two worlds at once: in the media World which is fake, and in the real world which has nothing to do with the media world. Thus many live in a fantasy world which is more real to them than reality, and the lie is made to be more dignified than the truth. These pseudo-events are inherently destructive to a free democratic society.

The extremists of the 19th century said man was made entirely by his environment, and extremists of the 20th century say man entirely makes his environment and his god.

Most journalists today are John Dewey followers, some of them consciously, most of them unknowingly. Dewey and Marx called for radical change, none of the slow stuff. Marx said socialism was a bastardization of his communism making his workers' paradise impossible. Bernie Sanders speaks of democratic socialism, but they all know that's just one step on the road towards communism.

Journalists and reporters are supposed to be unbiased and non-partisan, just reporting facts. Now it's called public journalism where it's more about activism and politicization than information.

See the book Rules for Radicals by Saul Alinsky. He talks about radical revolutionaries who don't know what will work, but don't like the current system.

There are thousands of scholars who have challenged the idea that the Earth is warming and that humans are causing it, yet the journalists have decided that despite this being a highly politicized and debated topic they're no longer going to cover climate deniers; they're no longer going to give time of day to the idea this can be false, they're just going to pretend like everybody agrees that it's true. They're not experts in science but they are committed to the climate change movement agenda.

The same thing happens with Critical Race Theory - journalists are reporting on it as though it's a fact and ignoring the debate, ignoring the controversy. Dividing people by race does more to create bloodshed than to promote justice and equality. The media has promoted a false narrative about racism which the facts do not support, but if you ever criticize it you are labeled a racist. Never mind the non-white groups who have income equality. Media heads repeat the same racial phrases so much that people begin to believe that the chief defining characteristic of a person is their color. They're encouraging stereotyping. They want everyone to believe that America from its birth has been and is an irredeemably racist society.

Martin Luther King Jr. said he has a dream that his kids would not be judged by the color of their skin but the content of their character. This is certainly not what Critical Race Theory advocates want; they're pushing us back into segregation.

Universities are some of the most intolerant places for anyone who wants to question Marxism. Academic freedom and free speech used to be considered foundations of education but that's not the case anymore.

The Soviets were made to confess crimes they didn't do, and people got used to lying all the time - this kind of pressure leads to a situation where only liars would speak freely. Cancel culture has evolved into discrimination where a person would not be hired if they were a Trump supporter etc. Conservative academic leaders report a hostile climate, and they self-censor fearing retaliation if they express their views to peers.

About half of the students no longer understand that hate speech is protected by the first amendment; they want their campuses to be a place where they're not exposed to dissenting activities which they see as intolerant or offensive. Students keep their mouths shut in fear of offending someone.

Note: Some inherently crude and malicious things shouldn't be supported. But what's going on is that conservative traditional truths are now being falsely labeled as intolerable and hateful things. In other words, the right affirms the American value of free speech, and the left is anti-American in it's stance against free speech. We should be able to express opinions, even if we aren't allowed to promote filth. For example, violence is not speech. For example, pornography is not speech – it's just filth, it doesn't convey ideas. Freedom of speech is about being able to promote ideas. We should be allowed to talk about our values and ideas peacefully and without censorship. But what's happening is that radical leftist views are being disallowed. In particular, the sin of sodomy is being promoted as a virtue, and anyone who expresses the opinion of that not being the case is silenced. End note.

Textbook writers now focus more on reflecting various races in their literature curriculum than selecting quality literature to be taught.

Journalists are banned for writing on certain topics, professors are banned for bringing up controversial topics and are investigated for quoting certain literature, researchers are fired for citing a peer reviewed academic article, etc. Even the President of the United States Donald Trump was banned from Facebook and Twitter. But Big tech can't name a big person on the left they ever censored.

Media Research Center (MRC) assembled a 2020 top ten list demonstrating “offenses” that caused them to sanction free speech:

1. Big tech shuts down New York Post’s reporting on Hunter Biden.
2. Twitter censors Trump tweet about mail-in voting.
3. Candace Owen’s Facebook page demonetized and suppressed.
4. YouTube removes COVID video featuring Trump advisor Dr. Scott Atlas.
5. Facebook demonetizes satirical site Babylon Bee over Monty Python joke.
6. Twitter removes all instances of Joe Biden meme.
7. Instagram removes FBI crime statistics, calling them “hate speech.”
8. YouTube removes video featuring man who reversed his transgender surgery.
9. YouTube suspends and demonetizes conservative news network One America News (OAN).
10. Instagram bans ads for Senator Marsha Blackburn’s children’s book.

We are using Chinese censorship methods to block speech with AI algorithms on social media, search engines, etc.

Parlor social media was killed, very tyrannical, big tech blamed it as a platform for radical right wingers, so they took the cloud space away, etc.

Big tech donations mostly go to democrats.

Michelle Obama called for Trump being banned from all social platforms for life. Alexandra O. Cortez and other Democrats tried to make it so anyone who worked with or for Trump could never get a job again.

Note: How convenient, let’s ban your political opponents from ever talking again. Anyone who would call for such a human rights violation should themselves be locked up. These leftists are up-in-the-night crazy, thinking that it would be okay to try to silence Trump, someone America chose to be their leader. End note.

Democratic Party fact checkers claim Fox News had given lots of covid misinformation in just a matter of days, but they didn't tell how they measured that. Democratic Party agencies put out scary letters threatening news agencies who show conservative views, and they go after television companies who allow conservative channels to be aired. Shutting down what the other side is saying is the trademark of totalitarianism.

Note: The conservatives typically take a much fairer approach – they say let the other side talk, just let us talk too. But the progressives don't want their opposition to be allowed to talk. Truth wins the day when there is a fair competition. Anyone who calls for something other than fair competition is on the wrong side. It would be a beautiful day when both sides would be shown at colleges and so forth. Soon truth would win the day, and no one would be interested in promoting false ideas any longer. That after all is the idea of the university, though not the current practice. Unity will only come through freedom. Compulsion and censorship will always cause division and prevent the truth from being known. Similar principles operate for the market – when the government controls the market it will not naturally respond to people, and will be ineffective. So let the market of minds also be free. Let us reason together, not lord over one another. End note.

Marxists use fear and intimidation; they ban people from the workplace, they get rid of historical monuments, they don't let you say certain things. They distort history and brainwash students. They deplatform opposing views. They're the ones promoting racism and sexism even though they're saying they're trying to get rid of those. (aka, using anti-racism claims to promote racism.) They are using freedom to destroy freedom and using the Constitution to destroy the Constitution.

Ch. 7 We Choose Liberty (Solutions for Schools, Corporations, Climate, & Rioters)

Don't ask 'what can we do to save America', ask 'what can I do to save America.'

Marxists are reprobates who defame our ancestors, slander our Founders, hate the country we live in, and have not contributed to its betterment.

The inevitable outcomes of Marxism are mass murder - you can't separate Marxism from murder. History has proven that repeatedly.

Celebrate and be invigorated by the teachings of the Founding Fathers - they defeated the greatest empire on Earth and made the greatest nation on Earth.

America is not a colonial power trying to take over the world; generation after generation of its soldiers fight to preserve the American heritage. However, Marxist critical theories on race and gender are now being taught to our military including supposed 'white rage.'

Schools:

Public schools are teaching children to hate America. Teacher unions and teacher associations call for the use of Black Lives Matter propaganda in the curriculum. It promotes queer affirmation and racially charged essays like teaching about white supremacy in American currency in math class. A survey showed 81% of teachers supported the Black Lives Matter movement. Marxism is invading the K-12 schools. It's also invading religious private schools, but it's the strongest in the universities and specially targets those who are getting degrees in teaching. The higher someone goes in education studies the more likely they are to be exposed to radical ideas.

Note: I can attest to this. In my teacher training courses, many Marxist books and ideas were required study. The professors thereof had a Marxist worldview that would not allow for free market solutions to real and alleged problems in society. End note.

Social media has turned out to be an oligarchy where content is vastly censored.

We must be activists and take back what's ours. We need to be involved in institutions to bring good influence. Pushback against the Marxist movements. Organize, rally, boycott, write. We are losing the war, most are uninvolved.

Note: Conservatives often like to go about their lives, working and being with their families. They don't want to make waves, they just want to enjoy the free society their ancestors have setup for them. The progressives on the left want to change everything and are overwhelming the political world. Conservatives need to get better at the political game the progressives are so good at and not let radicals overturn America. End note.

Note: A drive through downtown SLC Utah the other day left me quite sad, pride flags were everywhere, but no other flags, not even American flags.

Conservatives are used to being the quiet majority, but this can no longer suffice. We must speak up. We must fight back in this flag culture war. It's a little thing, but something we can do, and a good way to help show that there is a resistance to this overflowing scourge of progressive ideology. We can no longer let our normal lives be the sign of our convictions, we have to open our mouths and speak in ways that people can hear. We must participate in the game as it is. Sadly, it is apparent that many conservatives think that speaking up for traditional values is in some way harming minority groups. This could not be further from the truth. We want to be represented just like anyone else. We must stand up for the apparently new minority group: Christian family traditionalist Constitution supporting Americans. End note.

Pressure government to withdraw support from those who support Black Lives Matter and Critical Race Theory. Get CRT out, no more brainwashing our kids to hate America and focus on race. File lawsuits against all who use CRT.

See Foa.gov freedom of information. See USA.gov/complaint/government. See DefendingEd.org.

Note: Thankfully Trump is doing great work in the field of demoting radical Marxists, particularly in his second term, and there is forward momentum against the woke that must continue. Even if you can't file lawsuits, take whatever action you can to voice your opposition to these radical ideologies, and to make public your views on the family and on liberty. End note.

Be involved in every aspect of public education. Attend every school board meeting to ensure the people are heard, not the unions and government who dominate education. Require schools to teach civics and American government, real history as written by real historians, not the widely disputed 1619 project.

Note: Even if you've joined the homeschool movement, it's still important to do what you can to direct public schools toward sanity. This is where children from the community go, and you can't stand by while your community indulges in corruption. Granted much of your time will be wrapped up in actually educating children, but there can be positive ways you can contribute to directing and holding accountable the public schools. End note.

Parents, direct your kids to colleges which aren't hotbeds for Marxism. Universities have become their own states and insist no one interfere with their agendas. Radical tenured professors preach sedition. They hire each other to keep their groupthink. Get rid of tenure (so professors can be held accountable). Most professors are leftists. It's ideological inbreeding, and must be broken up. Pursue litigation for false advertising and bait & switch tactics of universities who claim to educate but instead brainwash. Students, demand your money back when professors promote radical Marxist ideas.

Corporations:

Ayn Rand said industry today is criminal for allowing intellectual pollution.

Many major corporations have adopted Critical Race Theory and other Marxist ideologies. They squash others who don't comply. Trump banned companies who use CRT, but now Biden is hiring executives from their ranks, and they are married to the Democratic Party. While Marxists boycott pro-American companies, we must support American companies with our dollars.

Note: In Trump's second term he has done many great things to push back against the Marxists, like declaring there are only two genders and calling for merit-based hiring and admissions practices, stopping queer trainings for military personnel, etc. End note.

Opensecrets.org tracks company donations.

Large corporations often support the Marxist movements, so buy with smaller ones who aren't signed on to that. Google Apple etc. joined to suppress Parler, suppress Trump, suppress academics who spoke against Covid, etc. Antitrust laws need to be in place against companies that undermine our country, and laws which are already in place need to be strengthened so they actually have an effect.

Find alternative social media platforms who aren't bought out:
Parler, Discord, and MeWe for forums.
Rumble, Vimeo, and BitChute for video.
DuckDuckGo for a search engine.

See Censortrack.org.

Big tech companies cancel what's on their platforms with immunity which other small newspapers don't have. It's an oversimplification to say they're just companies doing what they want. It is mass distortion of truth and false advertising. For example, Google search engines pushed anti Trump, and had major influence on the election.

Note: Social media platforms are basically newspapers, and laws should be in place to prevent them from censoring, based on the First Amendment of the Constitution. End note.

See Investpedia.com.

Sports teams have major impact and can't be allowed exemption from antitrust laws.

Climate:

The radical climate activists wage war on property rights, liberty, wealth etc. Theirs is an attack on capitalism and vastly expands the bureaucracy. The more dire the threat, the more liberty people are willing to surrender. Crisis after crisis, government authority gets bigger and bigger. Cherry picking experts are aired without question by the media and pushed on the public.

Environmental groups should not have special tax exempt status because they are not non-partisan charitable foundations. They should not have special statutory ability to bring lawsuits on behalf of the public because their goals are to destroy our society.

Antifa, Black Lives Matter, and rioters:

The government has failed to press charges on these organizations for the mayhem they have released and the billions of dollars in property damage they have caused. In Florida Ron DeSantis has made increased penalty for rioters doing violence and damages caused during riots, so we see this can be done. They also have specific crimes for mob intimidation and cyber intimidation to deal with rioters who want to be violent and destructive.

Charge these rioters for the damages they have done so they can get defunded and taken down. Charge them for emotional intentional distress. Charge them for interference with contracts. Lawsuits are possible against the same group of people who keep showing up at violent protests. Charge them for property damage. Ask the IRS to investigate questionable funding elements of these groups. Other plausible charges and suits listed in the book.

Report the license numbers of cars leaving places of violent riots.

Note: Mob behavior can get out of hand very quickly. The nature of mob violence is different than typical violence and requires different criminal law enforcement methods. Not only are more police force and criminal charges against them are justified and necessary to keep the peace and deter the death and mayhem they cause, but a more strict approach to mob violence in general is necessary. For example, mass rioting can be groups for police officers to announce that any who do not immediately desist will be lethally shot. This level of force is necessary to deter the vastly destructive and dangerous actions of mobs. Conservative political analyst Joel Skousen has more detailed messages about how and why these type of enforcement policies need to be in place to deter mob violence. End note.

“Never tell people how to do things. Tell them what to do, and they will surprise you with their ingenuity.” -General George S. Patton

Unfreedom of the Press by Mark Levin – Book Highlights & Commentary

The following are a few highlights in my words with added commentary.

Ch. 4 The Real Threat To Press Freedom

Ch. 5 News Propaganda And Pseudo Events

Ch. 6 The New York Times Betrays Millions

Ch. 7 The Truth About Collusion, Abusive Power, And Character

Epilogue: A Standardless Profession

Introduction: Journalists today are not patriotic. They are selfish in promoting their narrative and they shut down those who do not agree with the narrative.

Ch. 1 News As Political And Ideological Activism

Republicans trust the media the least out of all major political groups. 54% of Democrats see the media favorably, while 68% of Republicans see it unfavorably.

65% of Republicans say there's a lot of bias in the news, while only 24% of Democrats say that.

Democrats and Republicans are further apart than ever before.

Reporting on Trump was not good journalism. It was not going off of non-primary sources, it was just 'he said, she said' and it was all negative; it became very political and even propaganda.

Journalism is supposed to be an independent monitor of power devoted to the truth and committed to the citizens.

For the first time in history news is produced mostly by companies outside of journalism. We have independent news posing as (unbiased) news, and it will lead to loss of freedom of the press.

Facts told plainly reveal the truth naturally. An objective scientific journalist works to give an unbiased report of what's taking place.

Note: Reporting is like science in that we want our science to be pure, raw facts, not theories built upon theories, as happens with evolution and all its assumptions corrupting every branch of science today. End note.

Media bias gives us a different worldview, the view that the liberals want us to see, and it has a real impact on our thinking, turning us into liberals. We are less and less able to detect the bias and to see the conservative reality. Slowly the extreme ideas become mainstream.

Note: This is called Hegelian Dialect, moving the center further and further away from the original true center by one extreme claim and compromise after another.

Group think today is known as “the master narrative.” It involves talking about things that fit the master narrative and not talking about things that don't.

65% of journalists reported being liberal, only 5% reported being conservative. Many journalists get hired into Democratic political offices (specific examples are given in the book).

Mainstream media outlets had a ridiculously negative rate of reporting on President Trump, like 90% negative. Fox News showed way more positive news about Trump being about 48% positive, and analysis showed that Fox was being more fair and truthful than the negative outlets.

Note: I recall a humorous fact, that Republican presidents are charged with crimes far more than Democrat presidents. So are the Republican presidents committing way more crimes? Of course not. The Dems are used to getting away with whatever they want.

A leader of journalists told people to not treat Trump like a normal candidate. They called for uniting against him, “calling him out,” not applying the normal rules of unbiased reporting to him.

Journalists now want to be activists, community organizers, they're no longer interested in being detached objective fact finders, yet they continue to claim to be objective.

Progressives are fundamentally elitist, claiming that the common person cannot understand or deal with today's issues.

Note: We do have a representative Republican government for a reason since we don't have time to deal with every last thing, but this is something different - the progressives are saying we can't have any say, and that anyone who disagrees with them should be silenced and are not worthy of an opinion. They are pushing communism and unrepresentative government, only accepting what fits their radical agendas, labeling the rest as 'hate speech.'

John Dewey was against reporting without social context; in other words, he didn't want unbiased reporting. By the '60s and '70s journalists weren't just reporting, they were mixing in social agendas to promote progressive policies and agendas. Now there's a near monopoly of news reporting toward the left. Old time reporters had to stick to "who, what, where, when, and how." It was only certain column writers who would analyze what happened, but now we've lost objective reporting and all we have is analysis, they pump us full of their version of the 'why.'

Journalists today are nonpartisan, but they won't admit it, so they won't be able to be objective.

Ch. 2 The Early Patriot Press

Early American printing included religious debate.

The early press supposed the American revolution and was patriotic.

Society is always good, but government is a necessary evil. We furnish the means by which we suffer.

Note: It seems there are different types of governments for different kingdoms, but all kingdoms have some kind of government. Of course, a holy people wouldn't need much governing. They would voluntarily follow a strict code of conduct. There would be law, but no need for police to enforce the law, as the conscience does all the enforcing. See Peter Kreeft's Culture War book for more on this.

Note: Also consider that the Lord's kingdom is a tax-free kingdom, a place of complete economic freedom, where the conscience guides, and the people prosper. The spirit of freedom is the spirit of Christ (2 Cor. 3:17, James 1:25, Rom. 8:21, Alma 61:15, 3 Ne. 21:4). End note.

The simpler something is, the less likely it is to dysregulate it and the easier it is to repair.

Today we have lifetime appointed judges who micromanage society with regulations and rules not voted on by the people, nor are they voted upon by the representatives of the people.

This creates organizations which are unelected, undemocratic, unrepublican, and unconstitutional.

Liberals like President Wilson reject much of the founding history of America and claim that the Declaration of Independence is only a theoretical document, applying only to the past. Wilson said we need to assess anew which principles we want every 4th of July.

Note: Progressives reject eternal principles and make it up as they go, doing whatever they feel like they want to at that time in placing their wishes, their current whims, as the highest good. Progressives also deny the eternal principles taught in the founding documents and trivialize them to being inapplicable random ideas.

Ch. 3 The Modern Democratic Party Press

There was a time in America's history where newspapers gave political views of certain parties, but they were known to be such, having the name of that party in their title, like "The Washington Democrat".

Obama claimed 36 times that we could keep our doctor and health plan, but it was not so. He repeatedly said Al-Qaeda was on the run, that Russia was no longer a strategic competitor, that his administration experienced no scandal, etc. Apparently they didn't have time to fact check Obama the way that they had time to fact check Trump.

Anyone who had anything bad to say about Trump was considered to be a truthful source of excellent news, and was given lots of screen time. They continually talk about Trump's 'eminent' demise. They aired stories which were of an unknown source and only made a little mention of how they weren't sure about the story, but went on promoting it anyway, knowing it would be believed by the audience.

In 18 hours on CNN and MSNBC they use the word impeachment 222 times. From the beginning people were constantly talking about Trump getting impeached. Everyone called Trump racist, Mussolini, Stalin, Hitler, and when Trump spoke about media bias, they called him un-American. Levin hilariously quotes dozens of news anchors railing on Trump, having extreme fits and calling him names like Neo-Nazi, white supremacist, and anything else they could come up with.

Note: Whenever you stand up for something that's true and right which will actually fix the problem, people will hunt you. Not saying Trump is perfect, but he certainly is more of a freedom president than most, and the thugs don't like that. End note.

A group of 24 psychiatrists and psychologists who didn't like Trump from the beginning got together and made a book about claims against his mental health to try and get him out. They did the same thing to Barry Goldwater. Psychiatrists and psychologists across the Nation were asked if they thought Goldwater was mentally fit to be president, and about 2,000 responded. Of those, 500 said we don't have enough information, 500 said he is fit, and 1,000 said he is not fit.

Ch. 4 The Real Threat to Press Freedom

Trump has never endorsed state-run media, he just responds to the relentless attacks on him by the media. He attacks the ideological one-sided reporting we are experiencing.

There was press suppression in the Civil War against people who were on the side of the south.

President Wilson did lots to suppress the press and free speech. He shut down and imprisoned people who spoke against the war.

President Roosevelt made agencies not cover anything against what the government administration policies were. Roosevelt was a huge fan of George Creole, who was Wilson's propaganda agent.

Obama subpoenaed and took the phone and email records of a Fox news reporter.

The Obama administration surveillance was more than any past president. The Obama administration denied requests of information which should have been available based on the “Freedom of Information Act” and they did this more frequently than anyone.

Obama gave a very hypocritical speech to journalists about how to do journalism. All the press reporters at the event applauded him because they were on board with his politics.

The press is not endangered by Trump, he doesn't imprison reporters etc. He doesn't take actions against broadcast stations for airing propaganda. Yet all of this was done excessively by past presidents. The press is hunting Trump and claiming he's doing the things that he isn't, things which others have done.

Ch. 5 News Propaganda and Pseudo Events

Now that journalism is so ideological and driven by activists which align with the political left, we don't even know if we're getting real news anymore.

Propaganda is the executive arm of the invisible government.

Levin explains the propaganda of the Obama Iran deal.

There's no scientific proof that humans have caused the climate to get warmer. Models suggesting human involvement were exaggerated. Scientists are more biased than most people in favor of popular theories.

Note: Leave it to the scientific establishment to claim ultimate elitism and to crush anyone who disagrees with them, even other scientists who raise questions.
End note.

Journalists have decided to stop covering climate deniers even though many renowned scientists deny human involvement in climate change and deny the impact human activities have on natural disasters. The journalists simply decided to take a side.

The Trump administration issued a climate warning on greenhouse gas emissions, but all the numbers used in the report were made by the Obama administration.

Urbanization causes local temperature to increase but not global temperature increase, and this is not considered in climate change models.

It used to be understood that if there was no news worth reporting that no news would be reported; but today when there's nothing to report they go make something up and report about it. With round-the-clock news we went from news reporting to news making.

Journalists try to hide their sources and claim to be giving hard facts.

Hillary blamed Trump of colluding with Russia and a special counsel was made to address it despite there not being any criminal record to justify it. This turned into the biggest pseudo-event of modern times, continuing for 2 1/2 years. For 791 days there was an average of 3 minutes every night on this, and 92% of news on Trump was negative.

The Democratic press goes from one fake event to another; first they said there's no way Trump is going to win the election, then they said Trump used Russia to win election, then they said there was obstruction of justice, and it goes on and on.

The media inundates the public with stories based on whims and speculation from unknown sources. To save themselves they make a little mention of how they don't know if the story is true, then they go on and talk about it as though it were true and give it tons of air time.

By journalists' own admission, today informing the people means competition in a market place of pseudo-events where they make their own questions, contrive their own answers, and make up facts for their stories. They live in a world of non-reality.

Ch. 6 The New York Times Betrays Millions

Today's stories are pre-contrived, and facts are used in a way that supports that story. It's supposed to be the other way: that a series of facts tell their own story.

People didn't get more involved against Hitler earlier on because the media was covering up his scandals.

President Roosevelt and other antisemites downplayed the news of millions of Jews being killed.

American newspapers and radio essentially ignored the Holocaust. See book "Buried by The Times." The New York Times, one of the nation's most important newspapers, discounted the most important story of the century. Reporting of Jews being killed occurred in the middle of the paper on a late inside page, whereas killing of other ethnicities was front page news. Even today the New York Times is against Israel. Stalin starving millions was also ignored by the New York Times.

American New York Times journalist Durante worked for the communists, had many favors from them, and was an adulterer. Durante lied about bad conditions in Ukraine to Americans. They never revoked his Pulitzer Prize.

Ch. 7 The Truth About Collusion, Abusive Power, & Character

Collusion:

Virtually every news agency is guilty of pushing the Trump-Russia collusion and related false news.

The Hamilton musical is a progressive twist on Hamilton's life. (aka, it doesn't reflect the real Hamilton.)

The Chinese helped get Bill Clinton reelected. Several other accounts of Democrats colluding with foreign powers are given in the text which the media didn't give any coverage of. Compare that to how they dealt with Trump.

Abusive power:

Robert Mueller's investigation showed there was no criminal behavior of Trump, but they didn't give up after that announcement.

Trump left a lucrative business to run for president and he donated his entire presidential salary.

Trump is not one of these ideologues who wants to radically transform America from what it is.

Trump's policies have been mainstream right and sometimes center left.

When Trump fired James Comey the media said it was obstruction of justice and criminal. Many Democrats know that Comey is corrupt and are on record denouncing Comey. The way the FBI handled the investigation of the Hillary emails was wrong. Comey himself admitted it was perfectly within the president's power to fire him.

Surveillance done by various presidents is given in detail in the book. There was lots of surveillance on Martin Luther King Jr.

Character:

JFK had sleazy affairs. Lyndon Johnson was a philanderer. These character flaws were hidden from the public. The media hide this stuff for those who align with the politics they want.

The media couldn't hide Bill Clinton's affair, but lots of what Clinton did is widely unknown, including rape, etc.

Note: Clinton's association with pedophilia and pedophile Epstein is now mainstream news. End note.

Brett Kavanaugh had lots of sexual scandals.

Note: The list of corruption of modern politicians could be endless. End note.

Epilogue: A Standardless Profession

Today news claims to be objective but uses an analytical style of the left.
Methods now are political and ideological.

Some basic rules for good reporting include:

- Never add anything that was not there.
- Never deceive the audience.
- Be transparent about your methods and motives.
- Rely on your own original reporting.
- Be humble.

Thomas Jefferson said "The only security of all is in a free press." Ronald Reagan spoke of a free independent press being essential.

The New York Times has been predictably and militantly hostile to Trump. They blame others for people's distrust in them, but they themselves have sown the reasons for that distrust.

The New York Times is about news with activism, it mixes the news and opinion columns.

Journalists decided Trump is dangerous, and they went out to prove that, abandoning objective truth. This is not the first time the Times has betrayed the truth.

Trump has taken no steps to silence the press, but it is a fact that Adams, Lincoln, FDR, Wilson, Obama, and other presidents did use the power of the federal government against news outlets and reporters with whom they disagreed.

A.G. Sulzberger (NYT chairman) is dishonest about his journalists and about Trump.

The real threat to freedom of the press are the current practitioners of what used to be journalism.

Time to Take Back America

Too long have conservatives allowed progressives to push them around and be bullied by Marxist ideologies infiltrating their institutions.

Mark Levin exposes movements in America to end our freedom of press, our right to speak, and many other pressing challenges.

As I point out key principles Levin brings up, I add commentary of my own further exposing the nature of the infiltration and providing solutions to the chaos.

Here I highlight several of Mark Levin's books.
